DIRTY WATER

New Scottish comedy. Things could get messy.

"If ten people call you a horse, then you better go buy a saddle..."

As seen on STV, the new Scottish sitcom comes to the Pavilion Theatre for Glasgow Comedy Festival. After a mounting number of complaints The Eager Beaver Cleaners will undergo an inspection from the council. With their jobs hanging in the balance, mopping floors isn't as simple as it seems.

Whether you're looking for classic stand-up comedy, musical comedy, live podcasts, storytelling, clowning and theatre - there's something for everyone in the festival's 21st year.

Glasgow's famous community spirit really comes to the forefront during this celebration of comedy and we can't wait to welcome festival fans back for another year of laughs.

A huge thanks goes to Glasgow Life and all of our incredible partners who continue to support the festival. Take a chance and see something new this year - you might just find your new favourite comedian.

Krista MacDonald
Festival Director

A much-loved highlight of the city's rich cultural events calendar, Glasgow International Comedy Festival has grown in scale and reputation over the years to become Scotland's largest dedicated comedy festival. It is renowned for showcasing a fantastic and diverse range of established and emerging comic talent, and offering a great variety of options, from traditional stand-up comedy to improv, magic, musical and drag shows.

Last year's festival - which featured more than 400 shows staged at over 40 venues - was hugely successful, and GICF 2024 is gearing up to make an even bigger impact. The outstanding acts confirmed already for the dynamic programme planned will delight audiences from near and far, so we look forward to welcoming everyone in March as the stage curtains rises for some superb fun-filled entertainment.
